Abstract:

Development is an acceptance of particular set of values. Similarly, political development has so far been related primarily to the study of equally disputed modernization. The essential functions that any such system was assumed to handle included political socialization and recruitment, interest articulation and aggregation, communication, and rulemaking, rule application and rule adjudication. In modern societies, the functions were taken care of by institutions and organizations such as interest groups, parties, parliaments and mass media. In addition, there were normative considerations, and including by way of representative political democracy. The aim of the paper is to know the contemporary development and change in Political systems related to Economic growth. The study found that the Pearson chi-square value is higher than 0.05. So, Null Hypothesis is proved. Primary data used in this research is a random sampling method. The type of research undertaken for this study is non-doctrinal and empirical research, sampling methods we adopted and thereby we adopted and circulated a questionnaire to the general public. The sample size is 1172 and the collected samples have been using cross tab analysis and chi-squared analysis. The findings of the study portray that regional parties had not played a prominent role in political development and women were not given the necessary attention in the process of political development

I. INTRODUCTION

Mostly, analysts of political development had faced similar kinds of challenges, such as national integration and participation. Scholars asked, for instance, how Third World countries dealt with 'Universal Political Functions'. How to build stable governments to promote a radical nation state project? Theoretically this paradigm captured. Leading scholars could not even agree on what should be meant by political development. Historians asked to probe into the emergence of modern politics in Europe and Northern America and found little evidence of the general functions and patterns. (Clapham 2002). Their basic argument is that we need to study the institutions, organisations, policies and Ideologies as such, take them at face value, contextualise them, and look into their own histories. This, of course, may be done in various ways and to different degrees. Some set aside grand theorising and focus instead on comparative studies of actually existing political institutions, functions and issues. The significant aspect of Marx's discussion of modernization in Asia is that he entirely attributes it to the bourgeois revolution and technological change. This is contrast to his explanation of the modernization of Western Europe. Modernization accepted social changes that led to shifting of economy at intervals, a sophisticated industrial technology. The aim of the paper is to know the contemporary development and transformations in Political systems related to Economic growth.

II. OBJECTIVES

- To study about Third World Politics.
- To study the change in the political life by the novel form of political activity.
- To study the Socio-economic developments.

III. LITERATURE REVIEW

(Klinghoffer 1973) This analysis stress has been on the instruments of modification, such as political parties, ideologies, and attractive leaders and that they have insufficiently delved into the problem of what truly changes throughout the method of improvement and political development. (S. N. Eisenstadt 1963) explored a number of similarities as of the foremost variations between the varied sorts of fashionable political regimes. (Sakwa 2012) examined issues of 'transition', a term that is at the best no quite a code word for the processes shaping accelerated and aware transformation of a society from one sort of social order to a different. (Curran 2015) the modernization and its practices and also the modernization of this sector and its establishments. (Ward 2015) mentioned the essential plan associated with a huge selection and depth of earlier writings regarding general or specialised theories of social, economic, and historical modification, evolution and progress. (Hah and Schneider 1968) explained the meaning of the modern world which is enclosed in such admittedly inadequate concepts of Westernization, democratization, or industrialization or in a limited technical vocabulary of the social science discipline.

IV. METHODOLOGY

For the purpose of this study is descriptive research is used to portray accurately the public opinion that regional parties had not played a prominent role in political development and women were not given the necessary attention in the process of political development. Convenient sampling method is used to collect the samples. 1172 samples-sample size. Independent variables are gender, educational qualification and age. Independent sample test, chi square are the research tools used in this research.

V. ANALYSIS AND DISCUSSION & RESULTS

Null Hypothesis(H<sub>0</sub>):-

There is no significant relationship between Age and regional parties played an important role in political development.

Alternate Hypothesis(H<sub>1</sub>):-

There is a significant relationship between Age and regional parties played an important role in political development.

Table 1: Cross Tabulation- Age and Do you agree that regional parties played an important role in political development Crosstab

		Do you agree that regional parties played an important role in political development					Total
		Strongly Agree	Agree	Neutral	Disagree	Strongly Disagree
Age	18 to 25	18	63	87	76	108	352
	26 to 35	16	20	136	184	158	514
	36 to 45	21	25	54	63	33	196
	above 45	0	16	25	46	23	110
Total		55	124	302	369	322	1172

Table 2: Chi- Square Tests - Age and Do you agree that regional parties played an important role in political development
Chi-Square Tests

	Value	df	Asymptotic Significance (2-sided)
Pearson Chi-Square	96.968 <sup>a</sup>	12	.000
Likelihood Ratio	104.358	12	.000
Linear-by-Linear Association	.372	1	.542
N of Valid Cases	1172

The study found that the pearson chi square value is higher than 0.05. So Null hypothesis is accepted.hence, there is no significant association between the age and the role played by regional parties in political development.

TABLE 3:- Age - Do you agree that women are given the necessary attention in the political development

		Do you agree that women are given the necessary attention in the political development					Total
		Strongly Agree	Agree	Neutral	Disagree	Strongly Disagree
Age	18 to 25	12	62	66	107	105	352
	26 to 35	41	125	99	131	118	514
	36 to 45	4	33	46	61	52	196
	above 45	19	14	25	38	14	110
Total		76	234	236	337	289	1172

Null Hypothesis( $H_0$ ):-

There is no significant relation between Age and women were given necessary attention in the political development.

Alternate Hypothesis( $H_1$ ):-

There is a significant association between Age and the women were given necessary attention in the political development.

Table 4:- Chi-square Tests - Do you agree that women are given the necessary attention in the political development

	Value	df	Asymptotic Significance (2-sided)
Pearson Chi-Square	59.246 <sup>a</sup>	12	.000
Likelihood Ratio	57.438	12	.000
Linear-by-Linear Association	7.725	1	.005
N of Valid Cases	1172

The study found that the pearson chi square value is higher than 0.05. So Null hypothesis is accepted.hence, there is no significant association between the age and the Women were given necessary attention in the political development.

VI. CONCLUSION

The nature of a kind of government might even be not modified suddenly or violently, but by the gradual, the corrosive influence of ideas and by the accumulating impact of various political philosophies. The essential dimensions of the thought area unit concern with equality, with the capability of form of government and with the differentiation or specialization of governmental organizations. additionally, the results show that political establishment variables area unit completely different. In democratic regimes, the longer political power is management by a particular politician, the larger process will be;

however, when handling autocracies such impact is reversed. Political polarization put together has an opposing impact underneath democratic and authoritarian regimes. To grasp however completely different political establishments have an effect on economic selections & growth, we'll have to be compelled to transcend the excellence between democracy and non-democracy.
